Action on the Home Front

The DHGR had a wonderfully busy day on the 25th May when, as part of the About Time History Celebration, we had a display and talk on the Fighting Forces Comfort Fund, (FFCF).

Gwen Smith spoke about the Wild Horse Plains Fighting Forces Comfort Fund in which her family were involved, also, her fathers involvement in the Volunteer Defence Corp. It was a really interesting and touching account of the times.

The Dublin History Group had some of the Wild Horse Plains FFCF Books that had been donated in poor condition so, through the Community Partnerships Grant from Mallala Council, they were cleaned by ARTLAB and some were put on display. The display is still up so if you would like to come and have a look - pop in on one of our Open Days.

Remembering our fallen in 2014

Don't forget the 9th November, our preparations are in full swing but we still need are photos of our soldiers from World War One, whether they fell or returned home to their loved ones, please share them with us. The DHG have a list up on our website and at the DHGR of the names of our soldiers.

Preserving those photos

Come along on the 24th August to a workshop that is being run as part of National Family History Month to learn a little more about looking after and displaying your precious family photos. Look for the advert in this Dublin Dispatch

Schlodder Shelter Tiles

The Dublin History Group are running a workshop for everyone to be involved with the upgrade of the Schlodder Shelter in Dublin by decorating a tile which will be included on the wall. So come along with your $15 on 10th August to the Dublin Institute
