Dublin History Group Research Centre

The Dublin Institute has seen a few changes of late. With the trees being planted, the updated garden is now flowering. The front lights were taken down, repaired and put back up again with a sensor with the assistance of local resident, Sid Fielder and District Council of Mallala. The Council has also put the History Group's sign back up after it was taken down during the remodelling of the garden. A new watering system for the garden and trees was installed by Council Horticulturalist Pam Drew's team.

On the inside of Institute, DHG President Ian Telfer showed off his handyman skills by installing our lovely new desk system that was kindly donated by Eric Sutton. The new desks will be great when researching and working on the computers.

The Research Centre has had a busy time this year with our Workshops, Events and Open Days and there's more in store for 2016. We only have two more Open Days this year, the 8th November and 13th December then closed for Christmas Break.

The November Open Day has Lisa Mansell coming back for the last time this year to do her “It's Christmas” Card Workshop. (Flyer below)

"It's Christmas" Card Workshop

Where: Dublin Institute
9 Sixth Street, Dublin

When: Sunday
8th November 2015

At: 1.00 pm
Workshop Cost:

$15 per person

Before you know it Christmas will be here and if you are like me, there are some very special people in your life that the store bought card just isn't right for. Choose one of the six crazy birds to make a light hearted fun card. Then try your hand at a shaker card with sequined snow and finally you will get to make a special something to show off at Christmas time.

The World War One plaques that are to be fixed on the special new garden edging will be blessed by Father Bart O'Donovan. Although we had the ceremony for them in May as part of About Time History Festival “We will Remember Them Exhibition” the edging had not been completed. We have asked Father O'Donovan to bless the soldiers for us in a quiet little ceremony.

Don't Forget our Christmas Raffle this year all profit will go towards the new plaques for the soldiers that died in other conflicts
